Modern Disposal Services team members recognized by American Red Cross

The Western New York Chapter of the American Red Cross honored Josh Curry and Sporty Ripley as "Workplace Safety Heroes" at the recent "Real Heroes" luncheon.

According to the American Red Cross website, "Some of us may find there to be nothing more mundane than a garbage run; but one couple on Josh and Sporty's pick-up route for Modern Disposal would disagree. While on their regular route, one of their clients collapsed trying to pick up his recycling bin. Seeing his struggle, Josh and Sporty immediately ran to his aid, helping him off the curb, calling 911, and sitting with him until help arrived.

"It's reassuring to know that someone you interact with every day – no matter how inconsequential they may seem – can be willing to help a hand when you are in need. Josh and Sporty stepped up immediately while they were on the job, which is why they are this year's Workplace Safety Heroes."

For the past five years, the American Red Cross of Western New York has honored individuals and groups for "immense acts of bravery, dedication and service to the community" at its "Real Heroes" celebrations. "Incredible heroes walk among us delivering kindness and making a difference every day."
