Big catch at Gratwick

Janine and Frank Congi of Wheatfield shared this picture of their son, Chris. They said that, on May 6, Chris went fishing off the small dock at Gratwick Park in North Tonawanda and "caught the fish of a lifetime!"

"It was at least a 20-pound muskellunge, or muskie. A woman passing by and her daughter realized he was reeling something big in and caught it on video and took this photo for him before he released it back to the river."

"Chris is an avid fisherman and has caught a lot of fish in the Niagara Region, but never imagined he would catch a fish this large - especially at our area park."

Old Fort Niagara celebrates king's birthday

A British soldier, serving at Fort Niagara during the 18th century, got one holiday a year: the king's birthday. To celebrate, the fort's garrison was turned out in new uniforms and powdered hair.

At noon, the artillery fired a "Royal Salute" followed by three volleys of musketry.

On Sunday, June 4, Old Fort Niagara will recreate this celebration with a series of living history programs about the British Army during the 1770s. At that time, the British monarch was King George III, who was born in London on June 4, 1738.

Visitors to the event will witness artillery and musket salutes and a program titled "Busting Battlefield Myths."

Another program features dressing the soldier from shirt and breeches to full uniform and equipment. Visitors will learn about various components of the soldier's uniform and why they were designed the way they were.

At 2:30 p.m., visitors can participate in a toast to King George drawn directly from 18th century records. That will be followed by a rendition of "God Save the King."

A press release said, "In the United States, King George III is often viewed as a villain who presided over the British war effort during the American Revolution. To soldiers at Fort Niagara, however, the king's birthday was something to look forward to."
